Section I: Mark the correct answer

(0.5*6=3)

1) Black Americans are incarcerated at five times the rate of white Americans. These disparities in treatment by the criminal justice system are noticeable as early as grade school. Almost 2 million students attend schools with law enforcement officers but no guidance counselors who can be integral figures in supporting students' mental health. Black students, in particular, are more likely to attend middle and high schools with higher concentrations of police officers than mental health professionals. These circumstances can lead to Black students being harshly disciplined by law enforcement at a young age, which contributes to the "school-to-prison pipeline." This is a real world example of

- a) Differentiation
- b) Inequality
- c) Labelling
- d) Intersectionality

2) Which of the following scenarios are examples of algorithmic bias

- B) Facebook explicitly allowing advertisers to target ads based on gender, race, and religion, showing women nursing roles and men janitorial roles, often targeting minority men for lower-paying jobs
- C) AI-driven diagnostic tools for skin cancer producing less accurate results for individuals with dark skin due to lack of diversity in training datasets.

- a) B only
- b) B and C only
- c) All of the above

5) The World Health Organization identifies that prison populations, in general, comprise individuals who have experienced multiple challenges. Ensuring the well-being of prisoners, regardless of their sex or gender, presents a range of challenges, and underscores the importance of international standards and norms that establish minimum standards for the treatment of all prisoners through the United Nations Standard Minimum Rules for the Treatment of Prisoners - the Nelson Mandela Rules (United Nations, 2015). It is important to recognize, however, that women prisoners face a range of additional challenges, many of which stem from discriminatory practices, laws, and structures that operate broadly (within society) and in criminal justice settings more specifically. From the below points which do you see are directly related to the burden of additional challenges that female prisoners face.

- A) The existence of offences that are applied only or disproportionately to women
